GOV. ALTGELD'S CAUSTIC REPLY TO AN EASTERN QUERY.

Standard Oil and Wall Street Methods So Oppressive That the South and West Have Rebelled.

graphic replies from Chas. F. Crisp, Elias Carr, Governor of North Carolina; Horace es, Richard Bland, Gov. J. P. Altgeld, and Senator John W. Daniel.

Gov. Altgeld replied at length as follows The feeling is not against the East as section, but against a class there which has dominated the policy of the Government, as well as the policy of the two great political partles, ever since the war, and has treated this part of the country as a great foraging ground. Unscrupulous men have so shaped Federal legislation and the policies of Federal Government as to ndirect tribute to a few interests. Those rests were and are located in the East. The Southern and Mississippi Valley States are not only the great producing, but also suffered unjustly, both as producers and as consumers; for the governmental poliwere shaped like the little darky set his trap, so as to catch "de coon a-comir and a-goin'." I cannot particularize in a brief dispatch, and simply call attention

First-After the war, when we were out danger, when there was no reason for on earth, Eastern financiers and manipuors induced the Government to pursue policy which practically doubled the debts of this country. This was solely in the interest of Eastern and foreign capiegislation which levied tribute on the whole country for the benefit of the few -found chiefly in the East.

tricky demonetization of silver, which, by merly done by both gold and silver, doubled the importance of gold and doubled its purchasing power and thus compelled tion, to give twice as much labor to pay the interest, as well as the principalenormous debts, national, State, municipal, to give when the debts were created. All this was in the interest of Eastern and foreign capitalists. The policies of the ernment, dictated by the East, have been ruinous to the Southern, the Missssippi Valley and the Western States, and as Providence has fixed a limit to all things, so there is a limit to patience and endurance, and the time is approaching when this selfish, unscrupulous and cor rupt Eastern domination must cease.

Again, the same manipulators have dic-tated the policy of both of the great political parties. Some of these men claimed be Democrats, other claimed to be Repubans, but neither cared for party. one idea all were striving for was to keep control of the Government and use it as a convenience in amassing fortunes at the expense of the American people. The Democratic party has practically been owned by New York for a third of a century, and for a portion of that time has been treated as a kind of plaything by Standard Oil and

Common decency and common cass would suggest that the tail should for once allow the dog to have his way. but we are notified in advance that it shall

The methods pursued by these people are well understood. They are going into history. The term "Standard Oil methods" is not only familiar to our people, but promises to five. As may be inferred from the sound of it, it includes, among other things, "oiling the way." There is a tradition that in 1851 and again in 1852 the "way was oiled" at the Chicago Conventions, and the confidence with which these people assure the world that they are coming to Chicago to see to sit that these crany Southern and Western men do nothing foolish would at least warrant the inference that things are to be is sishly lubricated in and about that convention.

Do you wonder that we are beginning to feel tired? JOHN P. ALTGELD. Mr. Crisp: "While there is a radical difference of opinion between the South and East on the money question, there is no East, absolutely none."

Gov. Carr says: "The South and West do not propose to be dominated by the money power of the East." Mr. Boles says: "There is no feeling of nmity in the West against the East. Drop that thought at once." Mr. Bland says: "There is no enmity be ween the West and the East. There is a apparent difference of sentiment on the uestion of finance among the masses of the East and West; but I doubt if there is really any great difference of opinion on this four children is so pathetic and unusual

The case of Mrs. Ella Clayton and her four children is so pathetic and unusual that it moved the heart of Mayor Walbridge, and special permission was granted her to place her children in the House of Refuge for a month, although none of them is disobedient or incorrigible.

They were committed to the institution Friday night, and their mother will be permitted to visit them as frequently as she may desire—a privilege rarely accorded to relatives of inmates of this home of castaways and incorrigibles.

Mrs. Clayton has been a widow for seven years. Four years ago she came to St. Louis with her four children—Ella, now 13 years of age; Bailey, 32; Ben. 9, and John, 8. For a time she was sheltered by the police, but a number of newspaper men became interested in her case and purchased her a lot of furniture and she went to housekeeping.

Since then she has managed to eke out a precarious livelihood by doing washing and household work, but the struggle for existence has been a hard one.

The girl worked whenever she could find employment and for several months, Bafley, the eldest boy, earned $2.50 a week.

Owing to their slender income they were compelled to seek the chaapest quarters possible, and this frequently led them into the most undesirable parts of the city. The children were thus exposed to many evil influences—a fact which grieved the mother and finally urged her to pursue the unusual course she adopted. She has been living in a tenement house at Fifteenth and O'Fallon streets.

She figured that, with the children off her hands for a month, she would be able to accumulate enough money to keep them in comparative comfort thereafter.

She presented her plea to slayor Walbridge, and he was so impressed with her proposition that he granted her request, and she departed from his office happier than she had been for many a day.

There will be another conference to-day in which Don M. Dickinson, Miles Ross and Senator Hill will participate.

A steering committee will be appointed by the gentlemen who are acting with Mr. Whitney, and a determined effort will be made at Chicago to force a compromise on the currency, or at least to secure the nomination of a candidate who will be acceptable to the whole country.

It is said that several of the conferees urged Mr. Whitney to announce himself as a candidate for the Presidency, but he declined to entertain the proposition.

Senator Hill is mentioned as the choice of the Eastern Democrats for temporary chariman of the National Convention.

GETTING TOGETHER

Indiana Democrats Expect Help From Populists and Silverites.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 27.—The free INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 27.—The free silver Democrats of Indiana, now that they have officially made their belief the party doctrine, are turning their attention to the Populists and the members of the American silver organization. The leaders among the free silver Democrats have believed all along that the Populists and the members of the American silver organization would join them on a free silver platform. It seems certain that the latter will join the procession without much coaxing. Anson Wolcott, member of the National Committee of the organization from this State, to-day issued a call for a State conference in this city in July. The call on its face appears to be for a meeting to appoint delegates to the National Free Silver Convention in St. Louis July 22, but it is pretty well understood that the meeting will indorse the action of the Democratic State Convention.

pretty well understood that the meeting will indorse the action of the Democratic State Convention.

This organization has not had much of a foothold in Indiana, so that the principal interest centers around the Populists. Free silver Democrats think that no matter whether or not the Populists as an organization decide to indorse the platform made Wednesday it is certain that all the Populists who were formerly Democrats will support the Democratic ticket. The Populist State Convention will be held July 28 in this city. The chief men in the party here say that by that time the situation will be so clear that it will not be difficult for the party to decide what course had best be pursued. The Democratic National Convention and the National Convention of the American Free Silver party will have been held. It seems to be the understanding now that the Populists of Indiana will be guided by the action of the Populist National Convention and the National Free Silver coinage and nominates men who indores such a platform and the Populist National Convention indorse the Chicago platform and candidates, the Indiana Populists will, it is averred, decide to act with the Democrats this year. W. H. CHISOLM FURIOUS OVER HIS CHILD'S TREATMENT.

Severely Punished by Matron Sleith for Buying a Nickel's Worth of Sweet Cakes.

As stased in Friday's Post-Dispatch, both Kinavey and Ratican allege that the bridge company discriminated in the matter of freight rates in favor of the Consolidated Coal Co. They allege that this corporation was charged varying rates from 12½ to 25 cents a ton for coal, while they, also in the coal business, were charged the full rate of 30 cents.

W. H. Chisolm of 2300 Hebert street had come to take away his little daughter, Mabel, because she had been whipped by the matron, Miss Margaret A. Sleith, and the little one clung to his neck and wept as if her heart would break.

The matron stood by and disclaimed her guilt, at the same time pointing out to several witnesses how anxious Mabel was to material to the coal business, were charged the full rate of 30 cents.

They are suing to recover the difference between what it cost them at the 30-cent rate, and what it would have cost them if they had been favored with the rebatts granted the Consolidated. The amount foots up in Kinnavey's case to $4,135.09, and in Ratican's to $3,885.64.

This accusation of favoritism to the Consolidated Coal Company is an old one. It has been common gossip for years. It is a Gould corporation and naturally is looked on with tender eyes by the Gould-gripped bridge.

The matron steed by and disclaimed her guilt, at the same time pointing out to several witnesses how anxious Mabel was to stay. The father, whose eyes dimmed when he clasped and kissed his daughter, straightened up and rebuked the matron for her treatment of the little one, and in siern tones said:

"Give me my bill. I want to settle with you at once. I will not permit Mabel to stay here another minute."

The matron folded her arms and cooly told him that he could not take the child without the permission of the Board of Managers, which meets next Wednesday

The matron folded her arms and cooly told him that he could not take the child without the permission of the Board of Managers, which meets next Wednesday morning.

Managers, which meets next Wednesday morning.

This incensed Mr. Chisolm, but Mabel selzed him by the lapels of the coat and begged him not to make a fuss, and the man who was mad enough to fight became subject to the little one.

Mr. Chisolm would not have demanded the surrender of his child, but for an interview which he had with her last Wednesday. He called to pay her his customary visit, and he sat with her on a sofa in the main hall. He tells what transpires as follows:

"While we were sitting on the sofa, no one else being in sight, Mabel drew up her dress above her right knee. I was horrified to see a black mark across her ieg. Then she showed me her right leg, and it, too, had a black mark like a garter about it. I thought that she must have received an electric shock and been burned by the current.

If the bridge company settles the claims of my clients I shall have nothing more to say. I have no enmity toward the Terminal people and will treat them as I would any one against whom I brought an action for a client. I have no desire to have their charter revoked or to get them into trouble with Congress, but I should imagine that when the facts in my possession become known that Congress will take some action. and Commanding General Missouri Division. Confederate Veterans and Mrs. Bell Baird True, chaperone to the maids, assisted at the reception.

The young ladies are typical Missouri beauties and Col. H. A. Newman, adjutant to Gen. Shelby, displayed most excellent taste in his selections. They were elegantly attired in pretty traveling costumes and from the shoulders of each hung the broad gold ribbon badge with "Missouri' printed on it.

Despite the pouring rain the earlier hours of the morning found the Laclede lobby crowded with gray-haired; wrinkled-faced and, in many instances, scarred and maimed followers of the Lost Cause, who had come to greet the young ladies and renew their friendship with Gen. Shelby and other officers under whom they had fought.

While the walls did not re-echo with the "rebel yell," a general feeling of good-fellowship and recounting of war experiences per added the house.

There was a beardless young man, handsome and dignified, who mingled with the crowd and who perhaps received more genuine welcome and attention than any other dozen men in the throng.

He was N. B. Forrest, Jr., the grandson of Gen. Bedford Forrest, the intrepid cavalry commander. Men and women crowded about him, and struggled for an introduction as eagerly as if he had just come from one of the fields of victory, where his dauntless grand sire had achieved fame. He is a bright young fellow, and modestly accepted the court paid him.

Young Forrest is a resident of St. Louis, and is the secretary and treasurer of the Young Men's Loan and Investment Co. He is about 29 years old.

Miss Annie Shelby is a tall, queenly young woman of the decided blonde type, surpassingly fair, with rosy cheeks and a manner most attractive. She is a brilliant conversationalist.

The young ladies under the chaperonage of Mrs. True, who will act as maids of honor to Miss Shelby, and who come from nearly every section of the State, are:

Missey Johnnie Masterson, Birdie Calvin, Herma Fields, Laura Balthis, Leah Asbury, Louise Britts, Harriet will show certainly the injustice of their charges and the necessity for a third bridge."

The discriminations alleged in the petitions filed Friday occurred prior to 1893, but Mr. Wind says that he has proof of others running on down to the present.

"That was done for a purpose," he explained. "Other suits will be filed in the future unless demands made upon the company are paid, which will show the practice has continued down to the present time. I cannot say just when I shall file these suits, but I will not wait for any test cases. There is other work occupying my attention just at present. This must first be got out of the way and then I will take up the additional suits against the bridge company."

Manager E. P. Bryan, of the Terminal, in his statement about the suits takes refuge behind the circumstance that he was not in his present office at the time the discriminations are alleged to have taken place. He declares positively that nothing of this kind has occurred since he assumed the management, but Mr. Wind begs to differ with him.

General Manager Simpson of the Consolidated Coal Co., with true corporation im dignation and veracity, declares that his concern has never received the benefit of a single rebate.

There was a large crowd in the lobby favorable to the measure, and they reflected Mr. Sweeney's disappointment.

The Central Railway bill has been before the Assembly for several years, and last night was not the first time it shot the legislative chutes.

It has been killed about four times, but the irrepressible Sweeney has bobbed up again after every knock-out. He attributes this lack of success to the opposition of the street railroads now in operation, and eavs he will appeal to the people at the next spring election to see if they will not elect an Assembly favorable to an extension of street railway accommodation.

The bill contemplated an extensive sys-fem of lines beginning at Fourth and St. Charles and extending far out in the north-western and southwestern sections of the city. It also proposed to use in places the trecks of the People's and Suburban lines. So anxious was the promoter to secure the passage of the bill that he offered to accept an amendment for a 3-cent fare and also providing for a liberal system of transision. She hesitated. He drew forth his watch and gave her two ninutes to decide. She said she guessed she would stay with She said she guessed she would stay with her mother.

They might have become reconciled, but for officious persons who widened the breach between them. Thus legal proceedings, instead of peace offerings, followed.

They sat facing each other in court Friday, and as the attorneys, with emotional eloquence, rehearsed the domestic incidents of their brief wedded life, each of them was visibly affected.

Mrs. Klingelhoefer sat with averted eyes, and nervously clasped and unclasped her hands. His eyes continually sought her flushed face.

ALTGELD STATES THE CASE BE-TWEEN GOLD AND SILVER.

YELLOW METAL OVERWORKED.

That Is Why Gold Has Advance While Silver Has Not Maintained Its Relative, Position.

EW YORK, June 27 .- The World pub this morning an interview by one reld, at Springfield, Ill. The talk was usively upon free coinage of silver, .ch Altgeld declares is the first popular ue in thirty years. The correspondent erts that while Boles, Bland, Stone and ier free silver aspirants for the Presiatial nomination are all courting Altgeld, to se influence they acknowledge, the imession prevails at Springfield that the vernor favors Bland of Missouri.

In answer to the questions as to why e Democratic party should favor the free inage of silver, its chances of winning if does so, the Western feeling, in fact, the hole situation, Gov. Aligeld said in part:

I don't think the East cares a rap what have to say. I don't think any Eastern paper would publish my views. It would not if it was thought it would do me or free silver any good. But fire away."

"All right," replied The World correspendent. "How about Teller? Will the Democrats nominate him if you free silver men get your plank adopted?"

"That I cannot tell," answered the Governor, dreamily: "I should think not. There are lots of good silver Democrats worthy of the nomination. It is possible we may take Teller, but the chances are against it. There is a strong movement for him and against him. No one can tell anything about the nomination until we get together at the convention. That is a minor matter."

"What is a major one—the making of the ntial nomination are all courting Altgeld

"What is a major one—the making of the "What is a major one—the making of the platform?" asked the correspondent.

"The great thing to be done is to get the party to declare for free silver, and so give the people an issue. They have not had one worthy of the name in thirty years. What do the parties stand for? Nothing but pap and patronage.

"Only twice in thirty years has the party of the people won. Both times its candilate and its platform were dictated by the Standard Oil Co., Mr. Whitney, Mr. Belnont and J. P. Morgan & Co., and see what it has brought the country and the party tc. We will change the programme this time.

party tc. We will change the programme this time.
"I actually read that Mr. Whitney is going to Chicago to save the party! From what? From the majority? He might as well stay home. The dog will now wag the tail. The West and South want a free tilver platform, and they will get it, for they will control the convention." "But, Governor," asked the correspondent, "do you really wish to permanently allenate from the Democratic party New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Delaware and Maryland?"

and Maryland?"

The Governor smiled, as if in pity, and replied slowly: "After New Jersey, Delaware and Connecticut have been practically abandoned by the Democrats, and after New York has gone Republican by 100,000 majority, and even Bourbon Maryland by upwards of 30,000, there is something sarcastic in that question."

"What States," went on the correspondent, "hitherto not Democratic, do you believe can be carried on the 16 to 1 platform to replace the certain loss of the 62 electoral votes in the Eastern States mentioned."

The Governor thought awhile and then answered: "First, there is not a single Democratic electoral vote in sight in the Eastern States on a gold platform. It is simply nonsense to talk about it.

"Second, on a platform providing for the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver at the old ratio we will carry all the States west of the Mississippi River and all the Southern States.

"This alone would elect the President, but, in addition, we will carry several of what are called the great Middle States, and we will stand a better show of carrying New York and the Eastern States than we would on a gold platform, for the reason that we can offer them something to hope for and something to fight for, while under a gold platform you can offer neither, for it means the ultimate destruction of republican institutions in this country and the absolute annihilation of the Democratic party."

"Do you really think the United States able, if free coinage is adopted, to maintain our currency at par with gold unaided by other nations?"

"The United States, being from an international standpoint greater than all Europe, can easily go it alone.

"But we do not have to go it alone.

"But we do not have to go it alone.

France and the Latin Union have not demonetized silver; they have only stopped coining. They are feeling the destructive effects of the present policy and would be glad to join us in opening their mints, and there is already a powerful movement in Germany in favor of re-establishing silver in that country."

make all our silver and paper money worth only sixty cents on the dollar in gold?"

"That question sounds as though it came from one of the new-born American wine-dinner financiers. No European writer ever asked such a question. According to Mulhall's statistics, the standard English authority, there is less available silver in the world now than there has been for a long period. At present silver has to be sold as bullion, and can be used only in the arts. If it is restored to its full functions as a money metal and placed in the same position as it held before, instead of selling his silver to be used in the arts, the holder of silver would take it to the mint and exchange it for silver dollars, or for silver certificates.

"With these he could pay taxes, import duties, interest on debts, and debts themselves. He could buy property—in short, he could do just the same things with them that he could do with so many gold dollars.

"This being so, it is apparent that silver would again be at par with gold, just as it was for two hundred years prior to 1873. "From 1782, when the financial system was founded in this country, to 1853, when the great gold discoveries were made, there was just about, on an average, two dollars worth of silver produced in the world to one of gold, rating both at colnage value. During all that time, however, the silver dollar was at premium.

"From 1852 to 1872 there was two and a half in the sound as a premium."

times in account of cost of the cost of th times as much gold produced as there was silver, rating them at coinage value. Both metals circulated at par as before.

"From 1873 down to the present there has been just about as much gold produced on the average as there has been silver, but during the former two periods silver was a part of the redemption money of the land, while during the last period it was not. During the last period it was not. During the last period it was not. During the last period it was not, on modity, and the moment it became only a commodity, and the moment it became only a commodity that to be done by gold alone.

"As Mr. Goshen, the great London banker and financier, has on several cocasions pointed out, when you double the work which gold has to do, you double its importance; you double the demand for it, and, you double its purchasing power, so that it will buy twice as much property on the average as it formerly did. This is exactly what has happened throughout Europe and in this country.

"Now, the restoration of silver will reduce the work which gold has to do by one-haif; it will reduce its importance and its purchasing power correspondingly. Silver has not fallen in value as compared with commodities or property. A pound of silver buys as much property as it ever did. "It is gold which has gone up. Just take the heavy load off gold, put half of the world's work on silver, so that each metal can be used for exactly the same purpose, and they would be at par."

"Do you think that international co-operation for free coinage is worth striving for?"

"Not so long as the English money-lenders can keep us in a dependent, subservient and tribute-paying situation by the present system. Nor can we get it so long as the English Government can make enormous profits out of the Indian coinage system, which it secures by keeping silver in the position of a commodity."

"If the necessity for the free coinage of silver is so plain and its benefits so certain, why is it that a large portion of this country, particularly the East, is not i

FOUR TIMES HE SOUGHT DEATH.

THE LAST SUCCESSFUL AND RI-VENSBURGH IS A CORPSE.

DRINK DROVE HIM TO SUICIDE.

Appetite for Liquor Was Develor

Rivensburgh was one of the best known retail dry goods men in St. Louis. He was a first-class dress goods salesman, and always commanded a good salary. At the time of his death he was temporarily employed as a salesman by the Red Oak Advertising Co. of Iowa.

Friday afternoon he went to his home at 1216 Biair avenue, where he lived with h's wife and two step children. He was apparently in unusually good spirits. He brought a quantity of provisions with him, besides fruit and some little presents for the children. He took particular pride in showing his wife the meat he mad brought for supper.

While he was talking to his wife she detected a peculiar odor on his breath and suspected that he had taken poison. She questioned, him, and he confessed that he had taken six ounces of laudanum.

Mrs. Rivensburgh ran screaming into the street. She found Patrolman Harlow who had Rivensburgh removed to the Dispensary.

By the time he got there he was in ter-had Rivensburgh removed to the Dispensity.

By the time he got there he was in terrible agony, and Dr. Lippe saw at once that his life could not be saved. He was taken to the City Hospital, where he died three hours later.

He left nothing behind him to show why he took the poison. On the way to the Dispensary he told his wife that he had written her a letter from the Southern Hotel and that he had also sent one to his mother in Erocklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. Rivensburgh has not received the letter.

to his mother in Erooklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. Rivensburgh has not received the letter.

Rivensburgh's case was a peculiar one. His father, Dr. Calvin D. Rivensburgh, was one of the most prominent physicians in Brooklyn. The family was prominent socially and young Rivensburgh had every advantage. He was a general favorite and a model young man, very bright and studious and physically a glant.

When he was 18 years old he fell from a balcony in a Brooklyn hotel, striking on his head on the marble floor. From that time he was a changed man.

He was as able and energetic as ever, but had one trait which had never before came to the surface—an uncontrollable desire for strong drink. But his capacity was never as great as his desire and two or three drinks would turn his head.

As years wore on, and he realized his condition, he became despondent, and often threatened to commit suicide. He married about ten years ago, his bride being a widow with two children. The family came here a little over a year ago.

They were well fixed, and Rivensburgh was always employed at a good salary. One of his peculiarities was that every time he went on a spree he would go to his place of employment and resign.

In a few days he would have another position. He worked for a number of leading dry goods firms, and was always in demand as a dress goods salesman.

He was 6 feet 3 inches high, broad-shouldered and handsome, and thoroughly manly, except when under the influence of liquor.

dered and handsome, and thoroughly manly, except when under the influence of liquor.

Friday's was his fourth attempt at suicide since he came to St. Louis. In December last he attempted to take poison, but his wife caught him in the act, and took the drug away from him.

Four months ago he took a dose of laudanum. He tried to shoot a policeman while being put in the ambulance, and created a scene at the Dispensary.

About the end of April Officer Maguire caught him in the act of putting a revolver to his head in Fiedler's saloon at Fourteenth and Biddle. The policeman took the weapon from him and arrested him. He spent the night at the Four Courts.

Mrs. Rivensburgh is prostrated at the residence of her sister, Mrs. William Poole, at 1420 Washington avenue.

Rivensburgh's mother lives in Brooklyn, N. Y. She has been notified and will probably send for the body. He also has a sister in Fenwood, N. J. Thomas Murray, the dead man's brother-in-law, will take charge of the remains after the inquest.

perchant, was named executor in the will

John F. Ryan, a well-known commission merchant, was named executor in the will of the deceased. Among the bequests was one of $10,000 to John Ryan, an uncle of the executor. The entire estate amounted to about $150,000.

The trouble resulted late Friday afternoon in an application in the Probate Court on the part of John M. Ryan, represented by Attorney O'Neil Ryan, to compel the executor to give bond and in the event of failure to remove him from control of the estate.

Until recently John M. Ryan was in the employe of John F. Ryan as a clerk at the Terminal Elevator. He resigned the position last week on account of the quarrel with his nephew.

Mr. John F. Ryan when seen by a Post-Dispatch reporter expressed the belief that some persons had influenced his uncle to the step taken Friday.

"It is a family quarrel," said Mr. Ryan, "and amounts to nothing. My uncle demanded that I settle with him at once and I do not see fit to do so. By the will I am not directed to pay the $10,000 over to him until the expiration of three years. His share, as you see, is comparatively small, but you would think it was the entire estate. He was working for me, but quit when I refused to settle. I will contest the matter in court and do not believe I will have any trouble about it."

This is the second time that the family of the late Frank H. Ryan has been before the public since his death. He died several months after his marriage to an employe of a Hot Springs Hotel, at which he was stopping. The wedding was a very quiet one and when it was learned of created a mith sensation.

Toen came Mr. Ryan's death, followed by the statement that he had renounced his wife on his death bed in order to receive the last secrements of the Catholic church.

A SMOOTH GAME.

There is a discussion raging in some of the Eastern newspapers as to who is ole for the gold plank in the St. Louis platform.

The anti-Platt members of the New York delegation deny that Platt forced the gold declaration into the platform. John E. Milholland, one of the anti-John E. Milnolland, one of the anti-Platt leaders, writes to the New York Evening Post, insisting that Mr. McKin-ley is primarily responsible for that ex-pression. Col. Milholland writes a logical argument leading up to the conclu-sion that Mark Hanna's fight against the word "gold" was all a sham battle, and that Platt could never, with his small folsonal character, and the high position he holds in Republican party councils, invest his words with peculiar authority. There can be no doubt after this assurance that McKinley is and has been all along for the single gold standard. His posing as a victim of the cunning of Boss Platt is to fool the marines in the West. In the East he poses as the Knight of the Golden Shield. This is a smooth game, but it is also dangerous.

AS TO THE CHAIRMAN.

It is now said that the Eastern mem-bers of the Democratic National Com-mittee, who of course control the committee as at present constituted, will propose the name of Senator Hill of New York as temporary chairman of the Chicago convention.

If this is done, it is probable that no protest against the selection will be made from the floor of the convention Senator Hill represents a State and would be selected from a delegation which has declared in favor of the single gold standard. His selection, therefore, would not mean a studied and deliberate affront to the Democrats of a State who hold different views. Senator Hill would represent and speak for a minority in the convention and in the Democrati party, but as he would no doubt temper his utterances so as to avoid giving in-tentional offense, he would probably be listened to respectfully by the majority, which would then proceed to carry out its views. The case would be quite different if the original intention of the National Committee were carried out. The Post-Dispatch serves notice on Chairman Harrity and his associates, that if any man is selected for temporary chairman whose selection would be an affront to the delegation from his State, a substitute will be proposed from the floor of the convention and carried with a hurrah.

By the way-What's the matter with Gov. Altgeld for permanent chairman of the convention? He is entitled to the honor, and is abundantly capable of meeting all the exigencies that are liable to arise in the convention.

ANOTHER TRUST PROTECTED. Of course it is a fallacy that increasing the general revenues will prevent raids on the gold reserve. Nothing will pre-vent such raids but destroying the ficplatform. titious value of gold. But if increased revenues could solve the problem, why should it be necessary to raise them by taxation of the mass of the people? By doubling the heer tax, thirty millions a year of increased rev-enue could be raised. Of course, the money would have to come out of the pockets of somebody subject to the taxing power of this government. We can raise money in no other way. But it would not come out of the pocket of the consumer or the retailer. The great brewing trusts and syndicates would have to pay it. They could not raise the price to the retailer, for the reason that the retailer could not raise it to the con-

But the brewing trust was as carefully protected in the St. Louis convention as any other trust or corporation. The Republicans urged the absurdity that more revenue is needed to protect the gold in the Treasury, but they insisted that the only way of raising that revenue is to tax the people on the necessaries of life.

It is a good time to get into the silver band wagon. It is filling rapidly and there will presently be no vacant seats.

Boles is eminently accurate. Our dictionaries will have to be revised before coin ceases to mean gold and silver. It is a wonder that Mr. Whitney's Stan-the kindling seems to be wet. It is the money power of the East, not the people of the East, that the West and South are rising against.

If gold were plentiful it would not be sed as much as silver. We should still have the paper substitutes.

The Wall Street freebooters are working every wire against silver, but it will lown them in the end.

With Michigan honestly represented at Chicago there will be an abundance of free silver votes.

MARITIME EXPRESSION.

ARE CLEVELAND DEMOCRATS
CRAEY?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Just before our State Convention I wrote you expressing the wish that the convention send no delegate to the National Convention at Chicago in July next, unless he should be a true Democrat and willing to fight and die in the last ditch for the old time-hondie in the last ditch for the old time-hon-ored principles of the Democratic party; that we were in a gread political revolution; that the principles and very foundation of the party were threatened by enemies and traitors within, and urged that no "Trojan horses" be sent to the Chicago Convention to disembowel the grand old party. The State Convention did its work well, and the Chicago Convention being near at hand, it behooves all true Democrats to see that the work of our convention is not lost, and work of our convention is not lost, and that the principles of the party, and the party itself, shall be transmitted and handed down to our children and children's children in all their Jeffersonian and Jack-sonian simplicity and purity.

Cleveland, Carlisle and others have based their efforts to revolutionize and destroy the party upon bold and glaring falsehoods and unfounded apprehensions; and that they will endeavor to consummate their nefarious work in the convention at Chi-cago by falsehood, strategy and fraud, may reasonably be expected.

Thus far, however, they have learned that true Democrats heed not the admonitions of such men, however exalted their positions may be.

15 is a grand commentary upon such treasonable conduct that every true and reliable Democratic State has stood true and firm to the old principles of the party.

Seeing their destiny written upon the wall, they now, including Whitney of New York and ex-Gov. Campbell of Oh'o, are pleading for a compromise at Chicago. Senator Blackburn of Kentucky but announced a "truism" when he declared "principles can-not be compromised."

Do they know that no compromise can be made in this contest without a violation or surrender of principle? True Democrats have made a gallant and valiant fight against the influence and patronage of an arbitrary, despotic and unscrupulous Democratic President and his followers. Victory has been won by his followers. Victory has been won by Democrats who have proved true to their party and its principles in the hour of its danger; and now these men, who have tried to destroy it, have the assurance to urge us to compromise—that is, that we shall surrender and abandon—the princ ples of the party, to preserve the unity and harmony of the party. There can be no such compromise. We must stand true to free coinage of silver, 16 to 1, regardless of the views or threats of those men and their followers. More than $15,000 has already been contributed for the Helmholtz monument, which is to be erected in front of the University of Berlin. Several artists have their followers. Mr. Whitney is very solicitous that we shall compromise by leaving the question to Congress to settle; and ex-Gov. Campbell shall compromise by leaving the question to Congress to settle; and ex-Gov. Campbell is anxious for a compromise which will leave the question to foreign nations to settle for us, thus admitting our inability to govern ourselves. Are all these men crazy, or do they suspect us to be fools?

A victory which gives us 16 to 1 now, must be left to the discretion of Congress.

or do they suspect us to be fools?

A victory which gives us 16 to 1 now, must be left to the discretion of Congress.

A victory which gives us 16 to 1 now, must be delayed and frittered away until foreign nations shall decide whether we are entitled to it, and have sense enough to run our own government. What nonsense!

Let every true Democrat in that convention stand firm for the free coinage of gold and silver at 16 to 1, regardless of consequences.

If the tender-footed Democrats who have

I have a theory to account for McKinley's prominence in the Republican party, a prominence which is not the reward of great abilities or indeed explicable to the ordinary student of cause and effect. My theory is student of cause and effect. My theory is based on a coincidence.

Anyone turning to page 160 of Carroll D. Wright's "Industrial Evolution of the United States" will find a chart indicating the westward movement of the manufacturing center of the United States, which, beginning in 1850 at Miffinitown, Pa., finds itself by 1890 within a few miles of Canton, O. McKinley is the apostle of unlimited protection to manufacturers. McKinley lives in Canton, O., and 1890 was the date of passage of the McKinley bill. For argument sake we can admit this to be so, except to assure him that when silver is restored to its rights as one of our standard money metals, no amount of hammering can flatten it down to a value that low again.

But before it is defaced it will have Uncle Sam's stamp on it that it is a dollar and also that we "Trust in God" instead of Wall Street. The act creating it will make it a legal tender for all debts due the United States or any of its citisens with business under anything like normal conditions.

"Mr. Taubeneck same that a large majority of the Populists, having come originally from the Democratic party, will not so back to it. Is that true?"
"No, I don't think that it is true, either in the matter of political ancestry or of future actions. If the Democratic party will rid itself of Grover Cleveland and his pawnshop proteges, and give us such a government as Thomas Jefferson did, I for one will have no hesitancy in going back to it. The Democratib party is all right when it is in the hands of Democrates, and I might add by way of conclusion that there is going to be a Democratic convention at Chicago next month."
"Then you favor fusion with the Democrata?"
"Yes, I am not exactly prepayed to define the convention of the convention at Chicago next month."

"Then you favor fusion with the Democrats?"

"Yes. I am not exactly prepared to desert Populism. but I believe in expedient politics. With such a man as Bland at the head of the Democratic ticket the Populists would have nothing to fear. He is not the Populist ideal in the sense that Gen. Weaver is, but at the same time, he stands for one of the chief claims of our party, and, for my part, I am in favor and indorsement. The Populist cause at this time might be compared to a man overboard—the proper thing to throw him, of course, would be a regular life-preserver—but in the absence of that. I believe in throwing him a plank or anything else that will save his life. This is no time to stand upon party ethics. The Republican party has drawn the line between the bondholder and the breadwinner; if the Democratic party declares for the latter by the nomination of Bland, there is only one thing for the Fopulists to do, and that is to vote for him."

The President of the Senate himself vainly invoked the rules of the House to check Senators Comas and Jimeno. It was easy to see that the latter were in touch with many of the Senators and the people in the galleries, who murmured distinct approval, and the majority of the press, whose editors applaud the orators and who so cunningly elicited from Marshal Campos and Gens. With two men on bases yesterday McPhee came to the bat. "There it is," yelled a fan as Hart swung his arm. Sure enough "Bid" knocked out a single, scoring two "Bid" knocked out a single, scoring two runs. With three men on bases Hart came to the bat. He missed two and as Ehret to the bat. He missed two and as Ehret to the bat. He missed two and as Ehret to the bat. He missed two and he Erowns started the third the same fan howled "You're out," and he was. That's the way other teams win games and the Browns lose them.

Joe Quinn reinjured his finger yesterday and may not be able to play for two weeks. "I guess you'll agree that the New York grounds suit the public. If you want to know the difference between certain know the difference between certain grounds and this beautiful sweep of real and may not be able to play for two wear.

"I guess you'll agree that the New York grounds suit the public. If you want to know the difference between certain know the difference between certain strong and this beautiful sweep of real estate, just take a trip to Cincinnati," said President Freedman, as he sat in his grand stand and flourished a gesture at the green-sward before him. This little innuende of Mr. F.'s was, of course, an indirect shot at his arch-enemy and brother magnate, John T. Brush.

Tommy Tucker accidentally got a ball over the right field fence in the eleven-inning game at Boston on Monday, and the hit was such a hit with Tommy that he swelled to the coach line and opened up his face in a basso profunde. Cartwright advised Emsile to swaddle Tommy's face with a mussle and Joyce advised Tom to take an injection of chieroform. The crowd made further observations to the same effect, and the thunder-throated trat hasems: returned to the bonch. Tommy's regulation as a coach-line soloist was ruined by the Boston newspapers.

During Tuesday's game in New York a foul fit from Crooks' bat fell in the grand-stand within a few feet of President Freedman, Dayed smart by refusing to return it to the diamond. Now, the God am magnate has an odd manis for clinging to every ball he can put his hands on. Aver one of the yames with Pittaburg he chased Killen into the visiting playars' dressing your and delanded the sphere, which illen prized othe; as the Pirstee had one. Secretary Howard Robison of Cleveland says that if Umpire Lynch had appeared at the Cleveland grounds Saturday, he would have been compelled to pay his way in. Trying to go Mr. Freedman one better, Mr. Robison?

Fred Pfeffer says that Mr. Freedman treated him like a dog while he was in New York. "He wouldn't pay nor release me, but took every opportunity to humiliate me by telling me I was a physical wreck."—Cleveland Leader.

Sporting Life gives McAleer of the Clevelands credit for being one of the four greatest outfielders ever known to the game. Dickey Johnson, Curt Welch and Jimmy Fogarty are the others. What about Tom McCarthy, Ed Delehanty, Bill Lange, Dusty Miller, Ed Burke, Dick Cooley, Mike Tiernan, Jake Stenzel, Hugh Duffy, Fred Clarke Joe Kelley, Billy Keeler, Jesse Burkett and half a dozen others. They are all just as good in the field as any of the four named, while the difference at the bat is overwhelming.

IMPORTANT DECISION.

Transfer of Insured Property Does No. Void a Policy.

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., June 27.—In the MOUNT VERNON, Ill., June 27.—In the case of the German Insurance Co. vs. Jaco T. Gibe et al., in the Supreme Court, Gib had his property insured for $1,500 and, con trary to the stipulation of the policy, con veyed it to his brother by deed. The hous was burned and the company resisted payment. The court held that although the deeds were absolute in form, they wer intended only as security for the raising of money, and did not pass title; and tha parol evidence may be admitted to shou that the parties intended that they should have this effect. The company was required to pay the face of the policy.

ETTY GEORGE

LED HIMSELF AFTER SHOOT-ING BERTHA LESTER.

IE GIRL WILL GET WELL

alias of Pretty George, had known Bertha for a year. He met her at the home of a mutual friend in North St. Louis. Her home is in Calhoun, Ill. She was visiting here.

They fell in love with each other and became engaged. After a time Lester seduced the girl, but he did not cease to love her in his own peculiar way.

He still wanted to marry her, but she refused. This caused the tragedy.

After having met Lester the girl went back home. Her lover often went there to visit her. On Christmas he gave her an ingagement ring. How she came to drift a life of shame is not known.

She refuses to tell. But about five weeks ago she and Lester, both of whom had been away from St. Louis for a time, put in an appearance. She was installed at Eva Burke's and Lester took to his cab again.

He was not satisfied, however, that Berthas should lead a disreputable life. He was installed marry.

She was charmed with her new environment and grew cold toward him. Finally she refused to have anything more to do with him.

It is said that there was another man in the case, but this the girl denies.

"The suit he refers to was the one given him by his mistress.

The wounded girl is quite cheerful at the hospital. The bullet only caused a flesh wound.

As she lay on her little cot she looked anything but a lost woman, save for the blondined hair which so often goes with this class of women.

Her cheeks are as round and her neck as plump as any girl would care to have. The color of youth and health still tinges her skin. Her bright blue eyes show no trace of dissipation, and her teeth are as white as polished marble.

Her hair was formerly black, and she has only changed it within the last few days. She had very little to say about the irraging the she was charmed whith a she refused to give up the life she is leading for the man who at least thought he loved her.

"That's why he did it," she said. "I did not want him any more and told him so."

As she said this she raised her hand to she has said this she raised her hand to she have a sh

It is said that there was another man in the case, but this the girl denies.

Friday night Lester sent several notes to her asking for an interview. She refused at first, but at last consented on his representation that her two brothers were in the city and wanted to see her. He said they were at Twelfth and Pine streets.

Just after midnight Bertha put on her hat and lest the house of the Burke woman. Lester met her outside and the two walked to the corner of Sixth and Walnut streets. Here they stood for twenty minutes quarreling.

"The ring" sugested the reporter, nodding to it.

"It's his," was the answef. "He gave it to me Christmas.

She bit her lower lip to steady it, and this was the only trace of emotion she showed.

"Do you know he is dead?" she was asked.

"Oh, yes," she answered calmly. "I know,"

"What are you going to do when you leave here?"

"I don't know, but I'm done with men," was her response, but they all say this.

Bertha is 19 years old. Around Sixth and reling.

He was insisting that she quit her fast life and live with him; she obstinately refusing.

Lester's moral plane was not high. He was willing to take her to him, soiled as she was, if she would be good in the future.

He was willing to share the profits of her shame, as long as she persisted in that life, for the very suit he had on she had given him, but he preferred that she quit

Complaint is made daily, and almost hourly, that Mayor Walbridge is neglecting the business of his office while conducting his gubernatorial campaign on the silence and suavity system.

It has been fully two months since the Charity Board discharged the Mayor's appointee, Isaac S. Bristol, superintendent of the House of Refuge, for official mistera ance.

Immediately thereafter there were a score or more of applicants for the vacancy, but the Mayor has not yet picked his man.

In the meantime Bristol and his family are living at the institution, just the same as if he had never been deposed.

More than one tax payer is asking the question: "Why is it that Mayor Walbridge, who prides himself on his record for economy in public expenditures, allows Bristol and his numerous family to remain at the Heuse of Refuge when he is not recognized as having anything to do with its management, in fact, has been deposed from it in disgrace?"

There are two vacancies on the Charity Commission Board, and have been for a month or more.

There are the three members to be appointed on the City Hospital Commission. The bill creating this commission was appointed on the Cuty Hospital Commission. The bill creating this commission was appointed on the Council and Speaker of the House should each appoint a member and the Mayor also one and two physicians to act with the commission. President Nagel and Speaker Kelly have refrained from making their appointments through courtesy to the Mayor.

Several days ago a prominent citizen went to the Mayor and asked him to name the Hospital Commission, so that it could get to work. The citizen urged the Mayor to act, and even went so far as to remind him that he was being criticized for non-action.

The Mayor listened attentively, as he always does, and then, throwing back his head, petulantly exclaimed: "For God's sake, don't ask me to make these or any other appointments until after the Spring-field convention."

The explanation, however, in the Hospital Commission case is said to be this:

There is a bitter rivalry between the various schools of medicine for recognition on that commission case is said to be this:

There is a bitter rivalry between the various schools of medicine for recognition on that commission and the Mayor knows that if he makes the appointment before the Springfield Convention he will make scores of men mad where h

It is the same thing that is withholding the appointment of Bristol's successor. Singularly enough in St. Louis the manager of in eleemosynary institution is chosen for his provess as a political manipulator, a thing that, perhaps, is not done in any other sity.

an eleemosynary institution is chosen for his prowess as a political manipulator, a thing that, perhaps, is not done in any other city.

There are a score or more applicants for Bristol's place. The Mayor has said time and again that the reason he has held up the appointment is because he wants to get an unobjectionable man for the position.

There have not been any applications fled for the place lately, but every day men who have been expecting the appointment ask in vain why it is not made.

Nor have there been any additions to the bundle of applications, for the Hospital Commission appointments in a month or two.

It must be plain, however, that the applicants may as well make up their minds to wait in hope until after July 22, the date for the Springfield Convention.

This condition of affairs does not, in the least, disturb the serenity of the Mayor. There are other things that do, and in the meantime the public business must wait.

The storm center of local Republican politics is at the old City Hall, though there is quite a breezy side-show continuous performance at the new City Hall, conducted by Czar Ziegenhein, who is pursuing the mayoralty with all the zeal of his impetuous nature.

The municipal barn at Eleventh and Chestnut streets had another narrow escape from the fire fiend Saturday.

This time it was not the City Treasurer's office, but the room beneath that was ablaze.

The large are lamps near the celling were out, but the men's attention was attracted upward by a crackling noise and a brilliant fiame. They gianced at one of the lamps and saw that the wire which lay along a beam of the building was sparkling furiously and was setting fire to the wood.

Stolle cried: "Look out! That wire will melt and drop."

The warning caused every man in the room to fiee for his life and the wire was left to burn an entrance into the City Treasurer's office above or wherever else it pleased.

Stolle telephoned the Edison Elecvric Light Co,'s power-house, and the officials there dispatched a lineman and gave a still alarm to engine company No. 14. The same was pecting a good hold on the beam and the wire was flashing fire merrily.

"What is the good of anything?" Con inquired of his inner consciousness.

The ghosts of vanished ideals, the specters of departed joys rose up en masse and thundered "Nawthin?"

That settled it. Con arose from his couch at 1511 Biddle street and seized a case knife. With it he attempted to sever his jugular vein and let his life blood out on the carpet.

The knife was too dull to cut anything tougher than oleomargarine and Connie failed in his purpose and succeeded only in inflicting a few scratches on his neck. Then he became still further disgusted and walked down to the police station at Seventh and Carr streets to tell his troubles to Capt. Peter Joyce, who, like the great J. Caius Caesar, knows the personal history of every man in his district.

Donehue was taken to the City Dispensary and was afterward locked up for being drunk on the street. He is 34 years of age and is married.
